

Airports are the gateways to New Zealand, connecting communities and families.

They are critical infrastructure that enable rapid transport across New Zealand.

Airports support local communities.

Most airports are fully or partly owned by local councils and have returned $510 million to local economies in the last five years.

Every airport in New Zealand is an important part of a national network that connects passengers to all corners of the country.

Airports connect New Zealand to the rest of the world.

Almost all international tourists enter New Zealand through airports, supporting a tourism industry which in 2018 contributed $27 billion to GDP.

27

MILLION

domestic passengers use our airports to travel across New Zealand every year international passengers arrive in and depart from New Zealand via airports every year.

14

MILLION

Airports are enablers for international and domestic tourism, business travel, imports and exports, education, aero clubs, skydiving, scenic flights, hospital transfers and rescue services.

AIRPORTS ARE STRONG SUPPORTERS OF THE ECONOMY

Airports add $6.5 billion to the New Zealand economy every year and support 80,000 jobs.

17% of all New Zealand's exports by value travel by air. Every year air freight carries $17 billion of high value products.

38

MEMBERS OPERATING

42

AIRPORTS

Our national network of 42 airports – from small to large – connects passengers to all corners of the country and to the world.

